OTTAWA AGREEMENT INFRINGED

Singapore Merchants
Under-Selling.

TAKING ADVANTAGE OF EMPIRE PREFERENCE

New Zealand Protest

Wellington, New Zealand To-day.

The allegation that Chinese and Japanese merchants in Singapore are under-selling British goods has been made before the Tariff Commission here.

It is declared that these merchants are taking advantage of the British Empire preferences under the Ottawa Agreement and at the same time manufacturing goods at low cost by means of native labour.

Professor Murphy, a member of the Commission, said that under the Ottawa Agreement, New Zealand undertook to afford Crown Colonies and Protectorates and certain mandated territories the same preferences received by Britain.

If Japanese traders were discriminated against, their firms might start manufacturing in Singapore and elsewhere in the Malay States, thus invalidating the Ottawa Agreement. — Reuter.

DUKE'S HEIR SUE FOR DIVORCE

Denies Charge Of Infidelity.

LORD BEAVERBROOK'S
DAUGHTER

London, To-day.

The suit of divorce brought by Mrs. Janet Gladys Aitken Campbell, daughter of Lord Beaverbrook, against her husband, the heir presumptive to the Duke of Argyll, began to-day before Lord Fleming at the Edinburgh Court sessions.

The proceedings were brought on the grounds of Campbell's alleged infidelity which he denied.

The initial move for the defense was the raising of the question of jurisdiction—respondent was born in Paris and claims his domicile is French, and hence that he is not subject to the jurisdiction of the Scottish Court in matrimonial affairs. — Reuter.

London, To-day.

Hitler Plan To Industrialise East Prussia

To Prevent Speed Of Polish Influence.

Berlin, To-day.

The rural province, East Prussia, is to be industrialised on a large scale in a desperate attempt to prevent Polish influence from penetrating into the province, according to the newspaper, "Konigsberg" "Preussische" "Zeitung".

Chancellor Hitler's plan provides for Government co-operation with the leading industries of the Reich, especially metals and textiles.

Waterways will be brought up-to-date to make the best use of export possibilities, while Konigsberg is to be made a special source of culture, the University being raised to National rank.

The plan is said to involve the breaking up of the huge Junker estates for division amongst workers. — Reuter.

A BRITISH LOAN TO CHINA

Soong Is Actually
Negotiating.

REVELATION IN COMMONS

London, To-day.

The Conservative Member for Macclesfield, Mr. J. R. Remers will ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain in the House of Commons, on Monday, if he is aware that the Chinese Finance Minister, Mr. T. V. Soong is now negotiating with a prominent firm of London bankers, for a large loan for China, the proceeds of which may be used to purchase goods abroad, and if the Chancellor will make a condition in sanctioning the issue of such a loan that it should be expended in the purchase of goods from Great Britain. — Reuter.

FORCE TO BE USED AGAINST FENG.

Charhar Situation
Critical.

Shanghai, To-day.

The China Press learns from Peking that General Pang Ping-hsun, Commander of the Shansi armies, has been ordered by the Central Government to lead his forces into Charhar and commence a "bandit suppression campaign".

This indicates that the negotiations for an amicable settlement of the Charhar situation are breaking up and that force will be used to suppress General Feng Yu-shiang. — Reuter.

GOLD COUNTRIES DEFEATED

BUT USEFUL WORK WILL BE IMPOSSIBLE

ONLY A SKELETON LIKELY TO REMAIN WITHIN A FEW DAYS

LONDON, TO-DAY.

CONTRARY TO EXPECTATIONS, THE BUREAU OF THE WORLD ECONOMIC CONFERENCE HAS DECIDED TO CONTINUE THE CONFERENCE. BOTH THE MONETARY AND ECONOMIC COMMITTEES WILL CONTINUE THEIR WORK. BUT THE GOLD BLOC COUNTRIES HAVE INDICATED THAT THEY ARE UNABLE TO PARTICIPATE IN THE MONETARY DISCUSSIONS. SUB-COMMITTEES HAVE BEEN ASKED TO REPORT ON JULY 10, WHAT WORK IS TO BE DISCUSSED, WHEREUPON THE BUREAU WILL DRAW UP FUTURE AGENDAS.

The gold bloc has been defeated for the time being, but the real situation remains unchanged, and it is obviously impossible for the monetary side to do any useful work in view of the abstention of the gold bloc countries, while important economic sub-committees like those dealing with tariffs and subsidies, cannot function owing to insistence by the gold nations of their futility until stabilisations is agreed.

The only work possible will be in connection with commodities like silver, timber, wine and sugar, and within a few days it is unlikely that anything but a skeleton will remain of the great World Economic Conference. — Reuter.

Moley Will Not Resign.

WAS NOT SLIGHTED BY ROOSEVELT.

London, To-day.

The United States assistant Secretary of State, and adviser to President Roosevelt, Professor Raymond Moley yesterday motored to Southampton to embark on the liner, "Manhattan".

His adviser, Dr. Swope, replying to a question as to whether Professor Moley would resign as soon as he reached Washington, said that he certainly would not. He had not felt any slight as the result of President Roosevelt's statement.

Dr. Swope emphasised that Professor Moley had not recommended stabilisation, but had merely passed on information. — Reuter.

OPPORTUNITY FOR EMPIRE

Non-Gold Countries
Should Continue.

London, To-day.

Press comments on the World Economic Conference decision, are generally somewhat cynical, but "The Times" expresses an opinion that there is no reason why the non-gold countries, whose joint interest in international trade is more than double that of the gold standard countries, should lose the opportunity of reaching agreements to promote trade revival.

The newspaper suggests that future discussions of the Conference might lie at present between groups of countries naturally drawn together by their geographical situation or trading interests.

For example, it would be the greatest waste of precious opportunity if the British Empire representatives did not take advantage of the present meeting to consolidate industrial, commercial and agricultural co-operation. — Reuter.

Further Business At Conference.

BUREAU RECOMMENDS STUDY
BY SUB-COMMITTEES

London, To-day.

The Bureau of the League of Nations Financial and Economic Conference sat almost continuously throughout yesterday, to consider the present state of the work of the Conference.

At the close of the afternoon session a statement was issued stating that the Bureau had unanimously adopted the following resolution presented by its President, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, after consultations with a number of his colleagues.

"Whereas the Bureau is firmly determined to proceed with the work of the Conference to the utmost possible extent and as rapidly as possible, and whereas on account of circumstances which have recently arisen, countries on the gold standard find themselves obliged to declare that for the time being it is impossible for them to take part in any discussion of monetary questions, the Bureau agrees unanimously to:

Firstly, request each sub-committee to meet as soon as possible to draw up a list of questions which can in these circumstances be usefully studied by it.

Secondly, to meet as soon as the reports of the sub-committees have been received in order to make recommendations as to arrangements which should be made for further business of the Conference.

The Bureau will meet again on Monday to receive the reports requested from the sub-committees. — British Wireless.

THRILLING RACING AT HENLEY

German Collapses
After Great Win.

CAMBRIDGE SUCCESSES

Henley, To-day.

Thrilling racing in the heats of the Diamond Sculls featured the second day's programme of the Henley Regatta, which opened on Wednesday. Cambridge men scored notable successes both in the Diamond Sculls and in the Stewards' Cup, breaking a long-standing record in the latter event.

An international tussle between Opel, of Germany, and Saurin, of France, provided the most exciting event, the German oarsman winning his heat of the Diamond Sculls by one-third of a length, beating his rival almost on the line.

Opel was behind for the greater part of the race but made a splendid rally in the last few yards. Immediately on crossing the line, he collapsed and had to be assisted ashore.

Warren, of Cambridge, scored a comfortable victory over Cajes, of Barclay's Bank, who, on Wednesday, caused a surprise by beating Guye, amateur champion and Wingfield Sculls holder.

In the third heat of the Diamond Sculls, Askwith, the Cambridge oarsman, beat Rutherford, of Princeton, America. The brothers Bigland, of Chester, eliminated the Italian hopes, De Colsandro and Bianchi.

Pembroke College, Cambridge, shattered Fawley's eighty-year-old record of 3 minutes, 36.2 seconds in the Stewards' Challenge Cup, beating Spindlesfelder, Germany, while Mannheim, Germany, beat Third Trinity "B", Cambridge.

America scored two victories in the Thames Challenge Cup heats, Hun School and Kent School beating Kingston and Jesus College, Cambridge, respectively. — Reuter.

London, To-day.

The consistent form of Walter Hagen, four times winner, enabled the famous American to lead the field of 61 qualifiers in the British Open Golf Championship at St. Andrew's yesterday with an aggregate score of 140.

Out in 35 and home in 37 Hagen led E. D. Dudley, another American entrant, by one stroke.

Gene Sarazen, the holder, went round the first nine in 33 and played perfect golf until the short eleventh where he took a 6 to return a 40 for a round of 78. His aggregate was 145 — five strokes behind Hagen.

George Duncan, the veteran British Ryder Cup player, failed to qualify. He was one under four for thirteen holes and then took a 10 to the fourteenth to finish with a card of 78. His aggregate was 154.

Abe Mitchell played a magnificent round of 68, very nearly equalling Nolan's 67 course record. As the result of his fine effort the famous British Ryder Cup player finished up only two behind Hagen.

MISS ROUND IN FINAL

DEFEATED IN MIXED DOUBLES

Hughes And Perry Lose
To Japanese Pair.

WIMBLEDON SURPRISES

London, To-day.

Dorothy Round, the No. 2 seeded player at Wimbledon, entered the Final Round of the Women's Singles Championship yesterday when she eliminated Helen Jacobs, last year's finalist by 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Miss Round, the first British woman finalist since Miss Kitty McKane (Mrs. L. A. Godfree) lost the title in 1927 will meet Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody, the holder, and five times winner of the title, in the Final to-morrow.

In a day of surprises R. Nunoi and Jiro Satoh, the Japanese Davis Cup pair, caused the biggest sensation when they eliminated G. P. Hughes and Fred Perry, Britain's leading pair, in the Fourth Round of the Men's Doubles.

The scores were 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

The defeat of Hughes and Perry on the eve of the Davis Cup Zone Final against Australia has caused a drop in British stock. The Japanese pair were beaten by Crawford and McGrath in the Semi-Final Round of the European Zone, and in view of Perry's poor form, Britain's chances of meeting America are remote.

The Mixed Doubles title will be won by a new combination this year. Yesterday Enrique Maier and Elizabeth Ryan were beaten by Von Cramm and Fraulein Krahwinkel, the German pair, in straight sets.

News given a chance to settle down in the first set the holders strove desperately hard in the second set before being beaten 7-5. The German pair are now in the Semi-Finals.

BRIDGE NOTESDashing the Cup Of Promise.

(By ELY CULBERTSON).

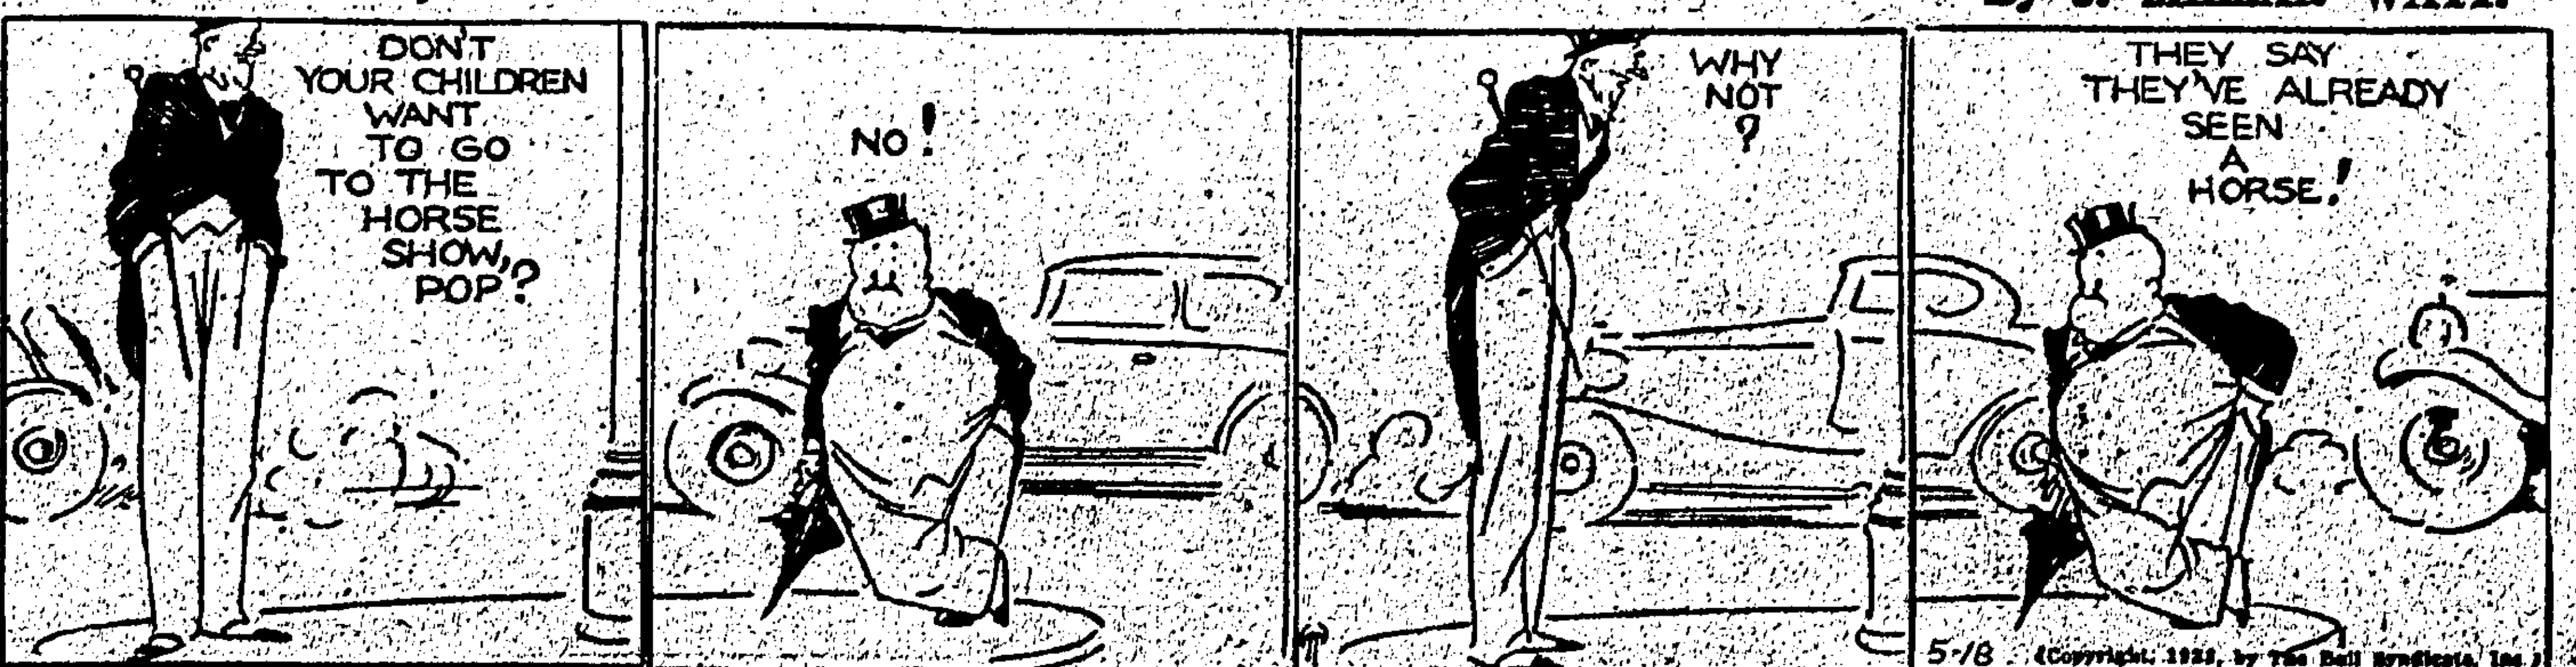

When a player holds King, Queen, Ten of trumps over the Declarer and the contract has reached six, he cannot be charged with undue optimism if he feels confident of his ability to defeat the contract, nor is he unduly reckless if he decides that his opponents shall play it at the doubled value. However, the possession of this trump combination, even if held to the left of the Ace, does not always guarantee 2-trump tricks, as Mr. Isak Nielsen, editor of the Nordisk Bridge Magazine of Oslo, Norway, recently proved. Mr. Nielsen held the South hand and was playing the Approach-Forcing System.

THE BIDDING.
(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)
South West North East
1—S Pass 5—S (1) Pass
2—S (2) Pass Pass Pass (3)
1—North is stretching the hand greatly to issue a Slam invitation. Slam should never be bid on distribution alone and, for all North knows, the combined hands may not hold more than half the honour-tricks in the deck. Another reason against the Slam invitation is the great danger of duplication of values due to North's void in diamonds and the possibility of South holding high honours in that suit.
2—Instead of a minimum, South holds a maximum one-bid. In fact, many players would mistakenly open the hand with a bid of two, forcing a response from partner. His bid of six spades is therefore fully justified.
3—East fears a Double might prevent him from making a spade trick and he is by no means sure that the club King is a trick-taker.

When the Dummy was exposed after West had opened the only unbid suit, diamonds, it was apparent to South that there was only one possible combination that would justify West in feeling that he could defeat the contract. Every face card with the exception of the Knave of clubs and the King and Queen of spades was visible to the Declarer in his own and the Dummy Hand. It therefore followed that West must hold the three outstanding trumps. To make the contract it was essential to reduce both the closed and Dummy Hands to three trumps and to throw West in on the eleventh trick with one of his high honours in trumps and thus compel him to lead to the Knave in the Dummy and the Ace in the closed hand. To do this it was necessary to shorten South's trumps by ruffing good hearts and shorten the Dummy twice in trumps by ruffing clubs. This process was accomplished, the tenth trick being taken in the closed hand. South now led the eight of spades and West's situation was hopeless. He won the trick, but was then compelled to lead, as South had planned, from his minor tenace in the trump suit, thus permitting Mr. Nielsen to make his redoubled contract by accurate play.

TRUMPING ACES TO FINESSE.
If you should ever see your partner engaged in the pastime of trumping Aces and Kings in order to finesse other suits, you might be pardoned if you doubted his sanity, or at the very least, his knowledge of the finer points of the game. Certainly, if he sacrificed game by this method you would feel certain

POP—No Novelty.LONDON REVIEW OF TERRITORIALS*Royal Consideration For Official Request.*APPEAL FOR RECRUITS

London.
London will probably see another imposing display in Hyde Park this summer, for Lord Hailsham, Secretary of State for War, has announced that the King authorised him to say that he was very favourably considering a request to hold a review of the London divisions of the Territorial Army in Hyde Park.

Lord Hailsham was speaking at the Guildhall, making an appeal for recruits to the Territorial Army. He said that the Army Council was seriously concerned with the present state of the Territorial Army.

To-day the United Kingdom had responsibilities and obligations in the matter of defence greater than ever before in her history. She had new Colonies and mandated territories and had undertaken obligations of defence by such instruments as the Treaty with Iraq and the Treaty of Locarno.

Before the war the Regular Army, apart from the Indian Army, was 250,000 strong. To-day it was 200,000 strong, and could be regarded only as an Imperial police force.

Behind the Regular Army was the Territorial Army and nothing else. Before the war it had a strength of 255,000. To-day its peace establishment was only 170,000 and actually the number of officers and men available was 127,000—less than half the number before the war.

"Every European nation," said Lord Hailsham, "except the defeated nations, has gone back to conscription and has tremendous conscript armies. Conscription in time of peace is alien to our tradition and instinct. The Territorial Army is the only alternative, which saves us from the necessity of conscription in Great Britain to-day. If we had not that army we would have seriously to increase our Regular Army and enormously increase armaments. We depend on the Territorial Army as an integral part of our military forces designed ready to take their place in expeditions overseas and maintain the defence of our own coasts."

"It is to the Territorial Army we look to protect us from militarism in time of peace and from destruction in time of war."

Prague.
Women will see Albert Durer's famous masterpiece, "The Feast of the Rosary," for the first time when the picture is hung in the Czechoslovak State Gallery. It was recently acquired from the Pramonstran order, in whose monastery it was kept for 400 years.

The painting has hung for centuries in a part of the monastery to which only men were given access.

The former Empress of Austria was made a privileged exception and given the right to see the painting where it hung but she made no use of it.

Lady Hamilton, who came to Prague with Admiral Nelson, was one of a few favoured women who were admitted, so that she might view it.

Women on several occasions dressed in men's clothes in efforts to get into the room where the picture was kept.

The painting was started by Durer in Venice in 1507. — Reuter.

MAE WEST IS NEW SCREEN SENSATION
IN "SHE DONE HIM WRONG"FOX FEATURES AND CHIN LOO COMPANY
BIG ATTRACTION AT THE KING'S.Europe's Movie Queen, The English Girl, Lilian
Harvey In "Congress Dances."

"She Done Him Wrong"
Mae West has been nothing short of a sensation for years on the stage, yet it was only when given a small part in support of George Raft in "Night after Night," that she made the powers that be, and the "fans" sit up and take notice. Because she is nothing like Garbo, she stands alone—but like Garbo, she is an acquired taste. I saw her in the stage version of her famous play, "Diamond Lil," now released and shown locally, as "She Done Him Wrong." She writes her plays and songs with words and music, and does not depend on the gag writers for her dialogue, as more than half the witty wisecracks heard in every corner of the globe originated from the pretty dynamic actress.

Somewhat, I doubt her world appeal, because her pictures are not for the children, and after all the juvenile audiences are a big consideration.

She is a character in herself, and has had the same manager for years, and is never seen without a pet monkey. She lives in a simple furnished apartment in the film colony, and wears the highest spiked heels I ever saw. She covers herself with jewelry, mostly gorgeous diamonds, adores prize fights (her father was a pugilist), and strange to say never drinks nor smokes, except when called upon to do it in a play.

She is broad minded and outspoken, and most certainly too sexy. I would not miss seeing her for worlds, she is in a class by herself, her characterisations are true and modern, her technique, her kind of stories are different from anything else you will see on stage or screen. She will be a sensation here with some people, and the others will just wonder why. She dominates the show, although surrounded with a grand cast consisting of Cary Grant, Noah Beery, David Landau, Gilbert Roland (in the part I saw the screen's new success Jack La Rue play) Owen Moore and others.

Go by all means to see this new personality, you can be assured you will witness a picture unlike anything else you have seen, and variety is the spice of life (Queen's).

"Lady With A Past"

Constance Bennett with Ben Lyon and David Manners in "Lady With A Past." Frothy, gay and ultra-modern. Luxurious surroundings, gorgeous gowns, endless parties, and an old story, but a grand cast working together in the best of spirits to make you spend an enjoyable evening. Don't miss it. (Central).

Favourite Returns.

Will Roger's fans will more than like him in "Too busy to work," although it is by no means one of his best films. There is a human appeal about it that pleases and quite a little drama thrown in.

As the philosophical Jubilo he hobbles his way to California to find his missing daughter.

He hires himself out as a hand on her farm, and incidentally helps her to happiness and goes on his way. Marian Nixon is the appealing heroine, with David Powell, new to us here, as the hero, which role he fills adequately. Just a pleasant evening. (King's).

"The Painted Woman"

"The Painted Woman" is reminiscent of Somerset Maugham's "Rain," with the same background, the islands in the Pacific, and a pretty light of love, striving to find a little happiness where she can. Peggy Shannon deserves better material. She is pretty, and a decidedly good actress. The big attraction here will be the favourite wisecracker, Spencer Tracy, in the role of an ex-marine, turned pearl fisher, who marries and redeems the girl. Irving Pichel gives a splendid study as a dissolute lawyer, while William Boyd is villainous, as always.

It is not an outstanding film and the story is weak and old-fashioned, but the acting is good.

The added attraction of the Chin Loo Troupe of Chinese acrobats and jugglers is a good extra.

Splendid team work, and a full quota of thrills, and turns that leave you gasping, and murmuring Oh—at intervals. Stage set in the usual vivid colours favoured by these troupes, and the gowns are gorgeous—in the way. I don't envy the artists. They will perform with the three next features—all from the Fox Studio (King's).

"The Cisco Kid"

You may think "The Cisco Kid" an old film. It was among the first, but Warner Baxter has never done better work than his character study of a Mexican outlaw, and the O'Henry story is a gripping one. Edmund Lowe and Conchita Montenegro are almost as good. Most certainly advise seeing this one, and the Troupe are worthy of your attention. (King's).

"The Age Of Consent"

Richard Cromwell a grand chance. Arline Judge the pretty waitress who causes all the trouble is fairly good, and the girl (chosen from the position of typist in the studio office) Dorothy Wilson, makes good as the heroine.

Story concerns sex in a big College. More of this later. Coming to the Central.

"70,000 Witnesses"

A football player is murdered in full view of the crowded stadium. Question—who did it? In "70,000 Witnesses" we have mystery and melodrama with a most unusual background. I guarantee you will be kept intensely interested every moment of its solution. While the identity of the murderer is skillfully concealed, you are led to suspect everyone in the cast, the trainer and players, coming in for their share.

However as the underworld is mixed in with the game you can make a pretty good guess where the culprit will ultimately be found. It is unfair to give more than a hint of the story, but it offers many other surprises besides the discovery of the criminal.

Phillips Holmes gives a capital performance as the suspected quarter-back. Johnny Mack Brown passes out early as the murdered half-back. Dorothy Jordan is the College belle, Lew Cody, David Landau, Kenneth Thompson do especially good work, while Walter Hiers, Reed Howes and Paul Page in minor parts make you regret we see them so seldom.

Charles Ruggles as the tipsy reporter is one long laugh.

A picture not to be missed. (Queen's).

"Congress Dances"

One of my recommendations for "Congress Dances" is to see Europe's Idols, pretty Lilian Harvey and Henry Garat.

Both these artists, having no more worlds to conquer in the "old" have set foot in the "new"—and the Ufa Studio, taking them well in hand, have made something of them.

Lilian Harvey was born in London, just over twenty-four years ago. Visiting relatives in Germany in 1914, she and her family were caught there, and remained, thus the world gained a film star who speaks both languages to the manner born. Garat is French, with an English wife.

Janet Gaynor liked him and he has just finished "Adorable" with her.

Good acting comes from Conrad Veidt—(seen in "Rome Express"). I do not doubt that the two songs in the film will be hummed till we are tired, and gramophone shops receive endless requests for same.

The story concerns the era of Napoleon.

Mediocre Programmes

"Fighting the Sun" was the heading of an article I read in a home journal. It argues—rightly—that if cinema managers give good shows, the enthusiast keeps on going to the pictures, even when the thermometer is almost at boiling point. As I argued in these columns, the theatres are the coolest places. Last Sunday despite the heat, every theatre reported crowded houses.

It is up to the local managers not to give mediocre programmes, leave the worst of the early British releases to be scrapped.

Why keep the greatest picture of all time, "Cavalcade," till the Fleet returns (ten chances to one they will see it North) and the cold weather sets in?

"Cavalcade" would fill any theatre for a week, no matter what the temperature was outside. We are promised from the leading theatres in the course of a few weeks—three outstanding pictures, the first being at the Queen's.

"Hell Below"

Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston and a large cast in the greatest submarine film to date—"Hell Below." It is truly magnificent from every angle, and should pack the place for at least a week.

Then to the King's comes "Zoo in Budapest." I have never seen such photography of animals. The story is uncommon, and the acting delightful. The kiddies will revel in it, and the last two reels give you excitement enough to make you grip your seats.

From an artistic point of view I think the camera man, Lee Garmes, deserves the greatest praise.

At the Central we shall have an outstanding drama with Leslie Howard playing the part he originated on the stage in "Animal Kingdom," and Anne Harding and Myrna Loy giving him excellent support. Here we have films that have caused talk and wonder wherever shown.

I'm Telling You.

The Herbert Marshalls (Edna Best) have a daughter. The Dick Arlens (Jobyna Balston) have a son.

Douglas Fairbanks has arrived in London bound for British East Africa for big game shooting, and is accompanied by son Douglas, Frank Lloyd who gave us "Cavalcade" who is busy writing a novel—"So Many Summers," and wants to get away from Hollywood to forget his heartaches.

Myrna Loy will be starred (about time) as the heroine in "The Worst Woman in Paris."

Mae West, who is considered by Director Wesley Ruggles to be the "smash hit of the year," will be working under him in "I am no Angel."

Francis Lederer who caused a riot in London in "The Cat and the Fiddle" is at work on his first Hollywood picture.

I wonder why they have not snapped up Jan Kiepura, who is now finishing "A Song For You" with French, German and British versions.

QUOTA IMPOSED ON FOREIGN ARTISTESIndirect Tribute To

CIRCUSES HIT BY ORDER

Paris.
An indirect tribute to British dancing girls is implied in the recent decree limiting the number of foreigners to be employed in different places of amusement. The percentage of foreigners in music halls and variety entertainments is fixed at 50 per cent.—but, says the decree, the quota may be increased to 60 per cent. "when these shows include troupes of foreign dancers."

As by far the largest proportion of dancing girls in France are British, this may be regarded as a graceful concession to "les girls" who invariably delight their French audiences.

The same proviso with regard to dancing turns applies to cinemas where a variety entertainment is given. Circuses are also allowed to employ up to 60 per cent. of foreigners.

On the legitimate stage the percentage is very much lower. The quota stands at ten per cent. for theatres, with special exception in the case of musical pieces; when the theatrical representation is accompanied by a variety show, the quota is 50 per cent.

In the case of film studios, the proportion of foreign actors and actresses is exactly the same as for the stage, the same distinctions being made, the foreign technical staff is to be limited to 50 per cent. with progressive cuts to 25 per cent. in 18 months.

None of the above provisions apply to foreigners who remain in France for less than one month.—Reuter.

WOMAN'S DARING
GAOL ESCAPE.100-Foot Climb Down
Prison Wall.

Lisbon.
A woman has just made the most daring escape from prison ever recorded in Portugal.

This woman was serving a sentence of 28 years' imprisonment for the murder of her son. She picked the lock of her cell high up in the prison, and opened a window in the corridor.

In preparation for her escape she had managed to make a rope of handkerchiefs, and, using this, she swung herself 12 feet along the wall, and grasped the lightning conductor.

She was still 100 feet above the ground, but she climbed down the lightning conductor to the prison courtyard.

A 15-foot wall still stood between her and freedom—but she scaled that. At the last moment she was seen. The alarm was sounded, and warders rushed out.

It was too late—the woman outdistanced her pursuers, and is still at liberty.—Reuter.

Danish actor whom so many of us have seen as Prince Danilo on the stage at home, looks like being a success in his new film with Ida Lupino, daughter of "Stanley," in "Prince of Arcadia."

Jeanette MacDonald will be with M.G.M. as leading lady in the musical version of "The Prisoner of Zenda," they hope Novarro will play the lead.

Minna Gombell who has been "let out" by Fox, has married a rich banker.

Leslie Howard will most likely play Sydney Carton in "Tale of Two Cities," under the direction of Frank Lloyd who gave us "Cavalcade."

He has now finished "Berkeley Square," with Heather Angel. Remember her out here with the Forbes-Russell Co?

Greta Garbo will positively make Maugham's "Painted Veil" after "Queen Christian."

Stuart Erwin is being appreciated. M.G.M. have signed him to partner Jimmy Durante, and their first release will be "Five Days."

"Uddine" which was the vehicle I remember the never-to-be forgotten Annette Kellerman played in the movies, will be re-made as a talkie.

Eleanor Boardman is paying her first visit to London.

A Committee has named Kay Francis as the screen's best dressed woman.

Local Architect In Court

Plans Misrepresented,
States The Crown.

MR. J. S. GIBSON CHARGED

That he had misrepresented the true condition of a building was an allegation made against Mr. J. S. Gibson, the local architect, when he was charged before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon on two counts, (1) misrepresenting the true condition of Nos. 279 and 281 Reclamation Street, which were under reconstruction, and (2) causing material divergence from the plans submitted to and approved by the Building Authorities.

Mr. L. R. Andrewes, Assistant Crown Solicitor, prosecuted, while Mr. M. K. Lo represented Mr. Gibson.

Evidence was given by Mr. R. J. Vernal, a P.W.D. architect, and Mr. F. C. Neville, Government Overseer, and the hearing was adjourned until this afternoon.

Mr. Andrewes in outlining the case, said the construction of these premises was rendered necessary by a fire which occurred on November 15, 1932. During that fire No. 281 was completely gutted, leaving only the wall standing.

The adjoining house, No. 279, was also damaged, and on January 10, 1933, plans were submitted for the reconstruction of these premises and they were signed by Mr. Gibson.

Various other papers were submitted together with the plans in accordance with the Ordinance. The first of these was a stability certificate dated January 9 and signed by Mr. Gibson.

The next relevant document was a form signed by Mr. Gibson and which stated that the plans and calculations submitted to the Building Authorities were prepared under his personal supervision, and that the said plans and calculations conformed in every respect with the reinforced concrete requirements. This document also stated that Mr. Gibson had been engaged to supervise throughout such construction.

When the plans were received by the Building Authorities, they were dealt with in the usual way. After an examination of the plans, notice was sent to Mr. Gibson informing him that certain amendments were required.

Mr. Gibson attended the offices of the Building Authorities, took away the plans and finally made the necessary amendments.

The plans were later again submitted to the Building Authorities, and they were approved on February 3, 1933. It was found that the amended plans conformed with the Ordinance and that was why they were approved. The Building Authorities relied on statements signed by Mr. Gibson, that parts of the old building would be utilized in the reconstruction of the building, and that he considered these portions to be sound enough. The stability certificate also stated that in Mr. Gibson's opinion, these portions would be structurally sound and capable of supporting the weight of the new building to be erected thereon.

It was essential, added Mr. Andrewes, that these portions of the building must in fact be sound. Otherwise the new building would, to some extent, rest on unsound foundations.

Mr. F. C. Neville, a Government Overseer, visited the site and inspected the building said Mr. Andrewes. He found that the fire debris had not been cleared away, and he was unable to make a close examination of the building. He called again on March 16, and he found then that work had begun and he was able to make an inspection of the building operations. He came to the conclusion that the various portions of the wall were in a very unsound state. He reported this to Mr. R. J. Vernal, an architect in the P.W.D., and who was his immediate superior.

Defective Walls.

On March 21, Mr. Vernal visited the site and inspected the building, accompanied by Mr. Neville. He found that the walls were defective, they were cracked and were unsound. The brick-work was in a bad state also. He formed the opinion that these defects were caused by the fire which occurred in November, 1932, and that they were present in the walls as from that day.

These defects should have been in the plans which were submitted on January 10, and by reason of their not being shown on these plans, the prosecution submitted, the defendant was guilty of misrepresenting the true condition of the building.

Mr. Andrewes pointed out that by making these misrepresentations, defendant would endanger the new building to possible collapse.

Now Mr. Vernal, after satisfying himself of the poor condition of the walls, ordered all work to stop, told Mr. Gibson to prepare fresh plans and ordered that the defective portions of the wall be taken down. He communicated all these orders to Mr. Gibson personally, and had several interviews with him in the office and on the site.

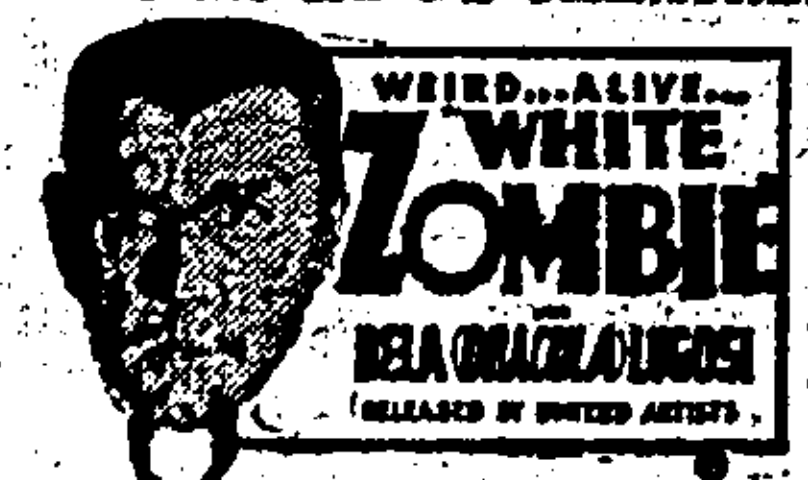

Notwithstanding Mr. Vernal's orders, work still continued. No proper plans were submitted and the walls were, not taken down. Eventually it became necessary for the Government to erect shorings to make the walls safe and secure.

The material divergence was that Mr. Gibson did not adhere to the plans. He erected a new portion of the proposed reconstruction, which he had not disclosed in his plans, stated Mr. Andrewes.

Police Bombing

Britain's reservation in regard to police bombing, advanced at the Disarmament Conference, has met with considerable opposition from most European nations, and Wednesday's debate on Foreign Affairs in the House of Commons revealed wide divergence of opinion. The case which Mr. Eden made out at Geneva — that bombing from the air is a cheap, rapid, effective, and not in practice a particularly inhumane method of maintaining order in uncivilized and mountainous districts — is in itself quite incontrovertible. On the Indian frontier and in Iraq this new weapon of police administration has undoubtedly proved its efficacy. Wild tribes which, as Mr. Eden said, have sometimes "a passionate appetite for disturbing the tranquillity of their neighbours" have been brought rapidly to a state of quiet subjection and order by bombardment from the air, preceded, as it always is, by the distribution of warning notices enabling women and children (and usually the men also) to remove themselves to the shelter of practically bomb-proof caves. The destruction is confined as a rule to the actual huts of the villagers, though warriors on the march to the southward passers may, of course, be directly bombed. Even then the "roaring menace" of a squadron in flight may be quite sufficient to turn the marauding trespassers homeward. By a show of irresistible force the aeroplane can sometimes stifle disorder at its birth. It can command places inaccessible to land troops — has Everest itself not been surveyed? — and it can make the authority of Government felt at less cost of men and money than any other branch of the Services. It can do its work during the hot weather, when the tribesmen have learnt that troops can hardly live on the bare rock under a baking sun. There is no longer, in fact, a close season for punitive expeditions. And the presence of a small Air Force may render superfluous the maintenance of a much larger body of ground troops. Yet, when the fullest weight has been given to all these arguments — and to the special plea of the Iraqi Government, whose interests the British Government always have in mind, that the tranquillity of their country cannot be assured without the use of bombs — the question remains whether the general abolition of bombing is to be prevented because of its value to police operations which have, after all, been carried out with success by other methods for centuries. If it were only a matter of maintaining a few bombers in such distant places as Iraq and the Indian frontier, then it is possible that other countries would make no serious objection. But how, if that local concession were made, would it be possible to withhold the same right from Italy and France, for instance, to maintain bombing squadrons for use in the mountains and deserts of North Africa? And Africa is separated from Europe only by the Mediterranean, which could be crossed by bombing planes in the first hours of a European crisis. At the present time there is a strong movement within the Disarmament Conference for the total abolition of military aviation, to which is attached the essential corollary that a system of effective supervision shall be devised to prevent civil aviation from being misused for military purposes. It may — it certainly will — be extremely difficult to elaborate any scheme of control which will be effective. But for the ordinary mass of the public in all countries the use of the aeroplane as a scout seems to be quite natural and indeed unavoidable if ever military operations are found anywhere to be necessary. The bomb, indiscriminate in its effect and almost unlimited in its destructiveness, is the weapon which they would like to see discarded altogether. The use of the air-bomb, if it is to be retained in any degree and for any purposes, ought to be reserved solely for use under the auspices of the League. Much of the useful police work of air squadrons is actually performed without high explosives; and it may come to be generally accepted that the use of tear-gas, as proposed by the American delegation, is wholly legitimate for police purposes. In any case it is certain that there will be no agreed international regulation of armaments unless each country is prepared to make some substantial sacrifice; and British public opinion will not be satisfied that the work of the Disarmament Conference should be held up on account of a British claim to use the air-bomb, however well justified have been the method and the purpose of its employment hitherto.

Knights Of King Arthur.

Admirers of King Arthur and his chivalry have erected at Tintagel, Cornwall, a great hall of stone and fabric glass which, in the presence of an assembly from all parts of the world, was recently opened by the founder of the Fellowship of the Knights of King Arthur, Mr. F. T. Glascock.

To the strains of music from "Tannhauser," the robed knights escorted the white-clad founder to a granite throne, from the steps of which he initiated the knights, and explained the significance of the ritual and the purpose of the fellowship.

It was not as a warrior, he said, that Arthur was revered, but as a spiritual leader calling men to the service of their fellows. The Round Table spirit was to be made to permeate all human activities, and already the branches of the order were radiating influence throughout the world.

Grand Old Man.

Slovenliness in writing caused rage to race through Moore's pale veins. He told his publisher that Conrad's work was "the wreckage of Robert Louis Stevenson floating on the slopes of Henry James."

But Hardy's work prompted his most violent attacks. He used to say: "They only like him because they must have a Grand Old Man."

A year after Hardy's death someone remarked to George Moore, "Your Grand Old Man theory has fallen flat. There is nobody who fills that position to-day." Moore put down his knife and fork as if to add emphasis to his reply, and in an almost Johnsonian manner remarked: "Virginia Woolf is the Grand Old Man of literature to-day."

LISTENING-IN TO THE INSECT WORLDSCIENCE PROBES MANY LANGUAGES OF NATURE

CATERPILLARS SENSITIVE TO MUSIC

(By Dr. R. T. Beaty of the Admiralty
Research Laboratory, Teddington.)

On a hot summer's afternoon the meadows are full of insect sounds — chirps, squeaks, and tiny rattles. The insects are talking to each other as they scurry up and down the blades of grass, and we should all like to know what they are saying, and how the conversation is carried on.

Scientists have been looking into the matter lately, and they tell us, as we could have told them beforehand, that it is just the old story. It is the boys calling up the girls, or else telling each other about the girl they met last night.

Grasshoppers, for example. Grasshoppers have their heads fitted with antennae, forceps, and complicated jaws, so that there is no room left for vocal organs or ears. So when they want to talk they rub their hard wing-cases together in an exaggerated staccato, frenzied way. This produces a high squeak, sometimes so high that elderly people cannot hear it. Perhaps they work on this wavelength for stories which would not pass the censor.

Whistle Accompaniment.

They frequently hold singing contests: one male chirps for a few seconds and is answered by a rival, and this alternate chirping goes on for a considerable time. You can join in this game if you have a high-pitched whistle, which you can construct from a toothpick or buy at a shop where scientific instruments are sold. Ask for a Galton whistle. A single grasshopper will reply to an imitation of its chirp produced by blowing this whistle, and indeed it is so obliging as to accommodate its rhythm to that of the whistle.

These insects hear each other by means of waves of sound in the air and not by vibrations transmitted along the ground, for a biologist once provided two small balloons, each carrying a grasshopper, and found that the singing contest continued when the balloons rose off the ground.

Biologists worked for many years trying to find out where grasshoppers keep their ears. The ears are not in the antennae, for removal of the antennae does not put an end to a singing contest. Prolonged scrutiny of the head under a microscope failed to reveal anything resembling an ear. But at last the problem was solved, and the result came as a complete surprise.

Grasshoppers carry their ears on their shins.

On each of the front legs, just below the knee joint, there is a slit, at the bottom of which is found a thin, tightly-stretched membrane. This is the animal's ear-drum. If these membranes are pierced by a needle, the insect, though it may afterwards give solo performances, refuses to join in community singing. A grasshopper has to be careful about being tickled on the shin lest it become deaf.

A Strange Experiment.

Crickets also have ears in this extraordinary place. In the case of the field-cricket the female flies towards the chirping male, but if her ears are destroyed by an electrically-heated wire this flight no longer takes place. If only one ear is destroyed the female still seeks the male, but her sense of direction is impaired, for the male is only reached after a series of erratic flights. There is no doubt that the female is really stimulated by sound-waves and not by the sense of smell or sight, for the male has actually been enabled, in an experiment carried out by Professor Regan of Vienna, to call up the female by telephone.

The male was set down in front of the transmitter, and at once emitted a series of chirps, which may be translated: "Oh, Jane! Oh, Jane! come to me quickly. My wing-cases are trembling so that I can hardly squeak."

Jane, who was seated in a distant room, no sooner heard the beloved voice than she leapt madly in the air, and may have said, as she settled down in front of the

"Where are you? I am listening with all my legs." At this point she was removed by a brutal scientist and locked up for the night.

Why They Listen With Legs.

It is an advantage for a small insect to have ears on the legs. Human beings can tell the direction from which a sound comes because if it comes from the side it reaches one ear before the other. The difference in time is only about a thousandth of a second, but it is enough to allow the brain to tell the direction. But insects have very small heads, and if ears were placed there, the sound would arrive practically simultaneously at both ears. But on the legs the ears are spaced further apart, and so sounds can be more accurately located.

Some moths have an ear on each side of the body. A common English moth, the Red Underwing, swerves in flight at any squeaking sound, such as may be produced by turning a glass stopper round in the neck of a bottle. The swerve is probably a response to the squeaking sounds made by bats, which prey on these moths. If the ear-drums are destroyed the moths no longer swerve.

In cicadas the ears appear as a pair of beautifully iridescent membranes which shine like mirrors. They are situated on the abdomen. Cicadas are among the world's loudest insect singers; there is a huge species in the New World tropics which whistles like a locomotive, and the solitary English variety, which lives in the New Forest, is audible over a range of 40yd. The urchins of Provence have a traditional method of catching the local cicada; by whistling they imitate the pitch and rhythm of the cicada's chirp, and the insect is often deceived to the extent of settling on the face of the whistler.

The Harmonious Caterpillar.

Even caterpillars are sometimes sensitive to music. The caterpillar of the large white butterfly which feeds on cabbage plants responds to a whistle or to a note on the E string of a violin by curling itself up like a U. But it only does so for a short time, so that any attempt to save the cabbages by putting a loud-speaker on the allotment is bound to be futile.

Such caterpillars hear by means of the hairs with which their bodies are covered. The hairs are set into vibration by sounds and excite the underlying nerves. If the hairs are weighed down by spraying with water, the insect becomes insensitive and gradually recovers its power of hearing as the water evaporates.

Perhaps the most dramatic performance is given by the caterpillar of the Camberwell Beauty butterfly, which feeds on nettles. It is only necessary at the proper season to place a bunch of nettles on the piano to see these insects gravely saluting each loud chord by raising their heads in chorus.

U.S. FROGS SECURE
HIGH PRICE.Consignment By Plane
To Italy.

New York.
Forty frogs arrived here recently from California by aeroplane en route for Italy, where they will start a colony intended to provide frogs eggs sufficient for Italy's use.

The emigrants are travelling under the orders of Premier Mussolini, who directed his governmental agents to improve the size and breed of Italian frogs.

The shipment was transferred from the plane to a Belgian steamer. At Antwerp they will be placed aboard a plane for the final lap of their journey. The frogs and the trip will cost about $1,500. Experts estimate there should be 10,000 to 20,000 eggs from each female frog by the end of June.

HURRICANE KNOCK BY AMES REALISES 295

Kent Smash Records Against Gloucester.

FREEMAN HAS 11 FOR 60

Oxford Win At Lord's

London, To-day.

Hurricane batting by Leslie Ames, who scored 295 towards the Kent total of 592 for 5, was largely responsible for Gloucester's tenth defeat and Kent's sixth win at Folkestone yesterday.

In compiling 259 Ames established a new individual record for the season, beating Bakewell's 246. Kent's total is also a record for the season, beating Yorkshire's total of 591. Kent also broke another record with a double century and two other three figure scores in the same innings.

Ames was responsible for a splendid England recovery against the West Indies in the Test at Lord's, scoring an unblemished 83.

Hammond and Dacre, who equalled an 1899 record in their last match, scored 129 of Gloucester's second innings total of 173 against the wiles of Tich Freeman, the only bowler to secure a 100 wickets this season. Freeman secured 11 for 60 in the match.

Brilliant bowling by Owen Smith, the South African Test all-rounder, resulted in an Oxford win at Lord's, in spite of good bowling by Bowes, the Yorkshire fast bowler and Test player.

Results as cabled by Reuter: Kent beat Gloucester by an innings and 294 runs at Folkestone. Gloucester 125 (Freeman 5 for 18).

173 (Hammond 56, Dacre 73, Freeman 6 for 42).

Kent 592 for 5 dec. (Ames 295, Todd 121, B. H. Valentine 113 not out).

Oxford University beat the M. C. C. by 6 wickets at Lord's.

M. C. C.: 132 (H. G. Owen Smith 6 for 51) and 135.

Oxford 128 (Bowes 6 for 41) and 141 for 4.

MYSTERY OF AIR LINER'S CRASH

"City Of Liverpool" Fatality.

ENQUIRY FAILS TO FIND ORIGIN OF FIRE

London, To-day.

The Air Ministry announces that the accident to the Imperial Airways air liner, "City of Liverpool," which crashed near Dixmude, Flanders, last March, and of which there were no survivors, has been investigated by the Belgian authorities.

They find that fire broke out in the central portion of the aeroplane; that the theory that the fire originated from the engines is practically impossible; and that, while possible causes could be suggested, these are speculations only, and the evidence does not admit of any definite cause being ascribed.

The Inspector of Accidents of the British Air Ministry also finds that on the evidence available that it is impossible to reach any conclusion as to the actual origin and the cause of the fire which gave rise to the accident.

It seems clear, however, that none of the engines failed or developed any defect, that the fuel tanks did not burst or spring a leak in the air, and that while the pipe lines themselves were virtually destroyed, all pipe connections, nuts and taps were in order. The electrical accumulators had not fired.

The Air Minister, Lord Londonderry, is satisfied that nothing could be gained by further enquiry.—British Wireless Service.

To-Day's Short Story.

MY ONE GOOD TURN

The Crook's Story

As Told to PETER CHEYNEY.

"HONESTY pays, does it? Well, I've never found it so. Maybe I've been lucky. I've been playing a hot game of cards ten years. I've been a 'con' man, too, although that doesn't appeal to me as much as card-slicking. The only time I ever saw the inside of a prison was when I was convicted in the United States nine years ago for something I didn't do. That's how life is!

"Here's the funniest thing—that's happened to me. I think it's funny because I once did somebody a good turn! And I don't believe in doing people good turns. You won't find anybody tougher than me in Europe, America or Africa, and I know those three continents pretty well. I didn't get eighty thousand dollars in the bank through being soft.

"Well, here's the way it was. I was coming over from Cape Town on one of the big liners. I'd had a good six months in Africa. I was a member of card clubs, and I worked private houses, too. I cleaned up a bunch of money. They seemed to be asleep most of the time. I believe they'd have let me mix the cards in front of 'em and they wouldn't have seen it. I've made a lot of money playing cards on big boats, but I made up my mind I'd have a holiday on this trip. I wasn't going to touch a card, not for anybody. I just flew around the decks and made friends. I was popular all right.

"There were two people on that boat that I noticed particularly. I've got a quick instinct naturally, and I sensed there was something odd between them. He was a tall, slim, dark man with a thin face and a charming way with him. He was a company promoter and was coming to England to raise capital for an African mine. I don't know what she was, but she was about twenty-three, beautiful and charming. She was married and was going to join her husband in England. She was a nice kid, and the word kid just about describes her. She didn't know a thing. They had met on the boat and he had sort of palled up with her. She couldn't have known much about men, or she would have laid off that guy! I used to look at them in the dining saloon, she laughing and talking, and watching her with his big, quiet eyes, rather like the way a cat watches a mouse.

"One night when it was blowing pretty hard I was up on the boat-deck smoking a quiet cigar and wondering what game I would get up to when I arrived in England. I was standing behind a wind-screen when the pair of 'em came up the companion-way. They stopped quite close to me, and I heard what he was saying to her.

"It's not a bit of good your arguing, my dear, he said quietly, but with a nasty note in his voice, but you're going to do what I tell you, and if you don't I shall have to make you—that's all. What you've got to do is this: You've got influential friends in England—people with money to spare—and I want some of it; at least, my gold-mine wants it, just in case there isn't any gold there! You've got to arrange that I meet these people, and you've got to tell them that you know all about the mine, that it's a wonderful proposition and all your friends in Cape Town have got money in it. They'll believe you—"

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "Breakfast For None," by Basil D. Nicholson.

"I couldn't hear any more. They walked away. It amused me rather. I've told you I'm pretty tough. At the same time I had a sort of pity for the girl. She was such a kid. It may have been due to this; or it may have been just natural curiosity; or it may have been that I just didn't like him, but, anyhow, the next night, after dinner, I ran into him in the smoking-room, and almost before I knew what I was doing, I asked him if he'd like a game of cards.

"He agreed in his usual charming manner, and we corralled three other people and started a poker game. I was playing as straight as a die, and I was winning too! I'd cleaned up about thirty pounds, and he was winning a bit, too. I thought it would be a joke to take some of his money off him, and the next time the play was between him and me I did a bit of ace-slipping and scooped nearly all he had won. We finished soon after this, and I was sixty odd pounds to the good.

"I went down to my cabin and was turning in when there was a knock at the door, and he came in. He was smiling—a nasty sort of smile—and he sat down on the edge of my bed without being asked and just looked at me.

"Well, what is it? I said, I thought maybe he had come in to ask me to buy shares in his gold mine.

"That was pretty slick poker," he said, still smiling. "I watched you do it. Just hand me back twenty-seven pounds, will you?"

"I'll see you somewhere first," I said. "And I don't like your accusation. The place to have made it was at the table, not now."

"All right," he said. "You can keep the money. But let me have your address in London, will you? Maybe, sometime, I could put something in your way. We don't have to quarrel about it."

"I thought he was a pretty cool card; but you never know when people are going to be useful, so I gave him my address in London, and for the rest of the voyage we were quite pleasant to each other. Most of the time he was hanging around with the girl, but she wasn't laughing much like she had at the beginning of the voyage. She looked scared. She was a mug all right. I guess he was pulling some sort of throat over her.

"A day or so afterwards we docked. I saw him going down the gangway, still smiling. The girl was met by friends and went off with them, and he and I travelled up to town together in the same carriage. We had a drink on the station this end, and he chatted me about the twenty-seven pounds I'd four-flushed him for. He was a cool card all right.

"The Plot.

"I saw him four months afterwards. I'd forgotten all about him, and I came home late one night from the theatre and found him waiting for me. He didn't waste any time. He parked himself in my best armchair and started in.

"You remember that girl on the boat," he said. "Well, here's how it is. She'd not a brother in the boat."

CRAIGENGOWER EASILY BEAT THE CLUB

Henry And Punccheon
Show Promise.

LOWE IMPRESSES.

Craigen-gower recorded an easy win over the entirely new Hong Kong Cricket Club combination in their match yesterday on the Club ground, the score being 7 sets to 2.

Howard and Kelly, and Reed and Y. C. Mok, won all their games. Broadbridge and Howard conceded the two sets.

Henry and Punccheon were outstanding. H. J. D. Lowe showed brilliant form, but he badly lacked support from his partner. His service and volleying were very deadly, and his play at the net was sound. Lowe and Harris Walker, however, lacked the combination shown by their opponents.

In the match between Broadbridge and Howard and Lammer, and Baskett, the Club took the first three games, but failed to hold their advantage, losing the next six games in succession.

V.R.C. AQUATIC GALA

Results Of Yesterday's Heats.

TO-MORROW NIGHT'S FETE

The Victoria Recreation Club, the oldest swimming club in the Colony, are holding their second aquatic carnival to-morrow night commencing at 9 p.m.

Among the "A" class entries for the 75 Yards Medley Race, will be seen such names as those of T. L. Paget, Ed. do Roza and Lionel Roza-Perreira.

Padgett has been in strict training for the past month under the careful eye of Bill Butt, official coach of the V.R.C. Ed. do Roza, who was unable to compete in the last fete, will appear to-morrow. An attack of bronchitis and a nasty accident have curtailed his activities during the past few weeks, but Roza is still among the best.

The event should be won by Lionel Roza-Perreira, as his newly acquired sprint speed will give him a distinct advantage.

H. M. Remedios, the Club's Breast Stroke champion, is the next best man in the race.

S. V. Gittens and W. Lawrence are notable absentees from this event.

Medley Team Race

The "B" class swimmers will be seen in a 75 yards variety race, following the Club's decision to encourage the three styles in swimming. There are some very fast swimmers in this class, and the event should prove an exciting one.

Following the races for novice swimmers, the programme committee have arranged for a medley team-race. This will be one of the features of the evening. The six members of each team will be required to swim two lengths Free Style, Breast-Stroke and Back-Stroke.

Edward Roza, the Colony's diving champion has now recovered from his illness. He will be seen in a series of exhibition dives, serious and farcical in company with H. L. Orzorio.

The inter-member's water-polo match which ended in an exciting draw at the last fete, will be replayed at the conclusion of the programme.

Dancing will follow the aquatic events.

Improve Your Tennis

(BY HENRI COCHET.)

The first requisite for becoming an expert tennis player is a good physique, as obviously a lack of stamina will always handicap a player, however, sound his technique and good his eyes and his conception of the game.

But good moral is almost as important. By this I mean that a player must never abandon hope of retrieving games or sets that appear to be lost nor allow himself to be rattled or put off his game by an unjust decision or an interruption of the part of the crowd.

Coupled with these two, of course, is frequent practice and study of the game.

Given these three attributes, no player should despair of acquiring skill in tennis, though he can never hope to excel other players if he does not possess that mysterious spark of intuitive anticipation of strokes that only the greatest players seem to possess.

S. China Polo Team's "Double"

Brilliant Win Over
C.C.S.B.C. And "B."

SECOND IN LEAGUE

(By CRAWL).

South China "A", contenders for the Hong Kong Water Polo League recorded a notable achievement yesterday evening when they secured a "double" by defeating the Chinese Civil Servants' Club by 2 goals to nil and their "B" team by 3 goals to nil in successive games.

This is the first time that any individual team has played two strenuous games in succession and won them both.

The feat is all the more noteworthy in view of the fact that the same men played for the winner in both games.

In their game against the Civil Servants at the latter's club, they had a very hard struggle and scored both their goals in the first half, which was played at a terrific pace.

The Civil Servants played badly, their tackling being continually at fault, so much so that Mr. Ip Kun-im, the referee, was compelled to warn several of their men on a number of occasions.

Kwok Chun-hang, and Cheong Wing-kwong played well for the winners, though the former's shooting was not at its best.

Wong Suen-man, the winner's skipper, played well and fed his forwards with good passes. He was, however, inclined to give his opposite number too much scope.

In the first game against the Civil Servants, Cheong Wing-kwong opened the scoring on taking a neat pass from Wong Suen-man.

The Second Goal

A few minutes later Cheung Kit-chai, the Civil Servants' right back was ordered out for "ducking" in the four yard mark, South China going further ahead through Lee Ping-piu, who netted during a melee with a back flip.

Mr. Ip Kun-im refereed. In their second game against South China "B" the winners were unable to score in the first half, although innumerable opportunities were given them.

The forwards, notably Lee Ping-piu, were caught within the two yards area on several occasions, but owing to the poor light, the referee was compelled to give the men the benefit of the doubt.

South China "A" were unable to register in the first half, but scored three times in the second period through Kwok Chun-hang, Wong Suen-man and Lee Ping-piu.

Mr. Ip Kun-im refereed. South China "A"—Kwok Mok-hoi, Lo Che-sing and Lee Ping-piu, Wong Suen-man, Leung Wai-sang, Kwok Chun-hang and Cheong Wing-kwong.

South China "B"—Po King-fook, Chan Ping-shiu and Wong Sul-chai; The King-hong: Tong Suikoo, Leung Yuen-hang and Leung Lai-sang.

C.C.S.B.C.—Chan Kong-mun; Cheung Kit-chai and Ki Lu-woon; Chan Fook-sing; Lai Pun-sin, Lai Im-cheuk and Lam Ping-tong.

AGA KHAN'S FIRST JOCKEY.

Elliott Denies Rumour.

London, June 16.

Elliott denies the report that he has been engaged to ride as first jockey to the Aga Khan next season. He says he has been approached, but has not yet come to a decision.—Reuter.

H. Gibson, the Kingstonian, P. C. inside-right, has signed professional terms for Portsmouth. Gibson was a member of the "Kingstonian" team which recently won the Amateur Cup. During a brilliant season he scored 30 goals. He joined Kingstonian from Ditton Old Boys, a Kingston and District League club.

BOWLS CHAMPIONS TO MEET THE CIVIL SERVANTS

Hints For The Bowls Novice

HOW TO HOLD THE WOOD.

By H. P. WEBBER (Former Singles Champion Of England).

TO grip your wood correctly is half-way to success. As in golf, there is no best grip; some are good, many are bad, and which one you adopt must in bowls be governed to a certain extent by the size of the hand.

Place the wood in your hand, taking care that your middle fingers are parallel with the running surface of the bowl.

This is an essential, because if your fingers are not straight in line the delivery will be untrue.

There are three classical grips—the "claw," the "cradle," and its offspring, the "finger-rest" grip.

The "cradle" grip is very nearly ideal. It is the artistic grip, smooth and graceful and a delight to the eye. Its advantages lie in that it reduces friction to a minimum, and that it causes no strain on the tendons and muscles of the wrist.

The "wood" rests in the cup of the palm, the middle fingers being directly under and flush with the running surface of the bowl, while the fore and little fingers just cover the "grip" ring at each side.

The thumb placed just below the disc exerts a steadying influence and prevents wobble at the moment of delivery, but remember that it is not used to hold.

In this grip the wood leaves the hand in roller fashion along the grooves made by the supporting fingers, so that ease and delicacy of delivery are ensured.

The "finger-rest" grip is somewhat similar to the "cradle," except that the wood rests further forward upon the fingers while the thumb is placed above the disc.

This is a good grip, unlike the "finger and thumb" grip, with which it is apt to be confused. In this bad grip the wood is tightly clutched between finger and thumb.

Balance is imperfect, because the under surface of the bowl has no secure rest on the plane of the hand.

All finger sense is lost, and a hurried and jerky delivery is unavoidable.

The "claw" grip is, as its name implies, a grip in which the fingers, turned inward, will real grip, probably cause the wood to be delivered in a narrow.

short-handed player. Not so polished as the "cradle" grip it is business-like and effective.

More reliance is placed upon judgment of throw than upon feel and balance. It differs from the "cradle" grip in that the fingers are further apart, the fore and little fingers are higher on each side of the bowl, while the thumb is just above the disc.

The rinks are as follows:

R. P. Phillips, N. J. Bebbington, F. Jones and A. W. Grimmitt (skip).

K.C.C. WEAKENED

The Kowloon Cricket Club, who have won only one of their seven encounters this season, will greatly feel the absence of J. Chadwick in their game against the Recreio to-morrow. Chadwick who will be remembered for his fine display against F. Cullen, a former champion, in the Open Championship, left for England on Wednesday.

SPEY ROYAL CUP

The following will represent the Kowloon Cricket Club against the Bowling Green in the Second Round of the Spey Royal Cup on Sunday July 16 at 3.30 p.m.: E. C. Fincher, J. M. Jack, A. Hyde-Lay and J. Fraser (skip).

Rules Forgotten

If the jack is driven by a bowl over the bank or into any opening in the bank, or into a step, it shall be counted dead. If the jack gets broken the head is begun anew. If the jack rebounds from the bank or from a toucher in the ditch on to the green again, it shall be played to in the same manner as if it had never been moved off the green, but a bowl similarly rebounding shall be counted dead unless it be a toucher.

PERSONALITIES No. 2.

Grimmitt Selected For Canadian Team

Brilliant Bowling While On Holiday.

REACHES LAST FOUR IN AN ENTRY OF 160 IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

(By REFEREE)

Taking up Bowls in the Colony in 1921 A. W. Grimmitt, the Civil Service's leading skip, has received Interport recognition on two occasions.

In 1923 Grimmitt was selected as No. 2 in Adam Holland's rink (J. C. Brown and J. Laing) against A. A. Malcolm's four in Shanghai. He was on the winning side, the Colony four making a remarkable recovery to win by 20-19. In 1929 he was No. 3 in J. Ferguson's rink (R. Bassa and J. Liang) and was again on the winning side, the Shanghai four being beaten 19-17 on the K.C.C. green.

In 1930, the first year that three rinks were introduced into the Interport series, Grimmitt was unable to obtain the necessary leave to make the trip to Shanghai and Hong Kong lost on two of the three rinks. In 1931 Grimmitt was on leave, and last year he was again unable to make the trip to Shanghai. He was assured of a place in all three Interports had he been available.

Grimmitt probably played the best Bowls of his career when on holiday in Canada in 1931.

Playing brilliantly throughout the British Columbia Championship, which attracted an entry of 160, he eliminated two former champions to reach the Semi-Final Round.

Grimmitt was then on a tour of British Columbia with the official Canadian team.

Grimmitt has never reached the Final of the Colony Championship. Last year, after the experience he had gained in Canada, he appeared a certainty for the title, but he was eliminated by R. F. Luz, the 1929 champion in the Fourth Round. The Portuguese won an epic struggle on the Taikoo green by one shot after a magnificent exhibition. Luz, however, played very disappointingly against H. Nish, the ultimate runner-up, and after a poor display lost by 21 to 8 in the semi-final.

In Club tournaments Grimmitt has always been in the limelight.

In 1921, his first year, he reached the Final of the Craigenower Championship only to lose to R. Bassa. In 1923 he beat W. G. Gerard to win the Police title and retained it in 1924 against the same player.

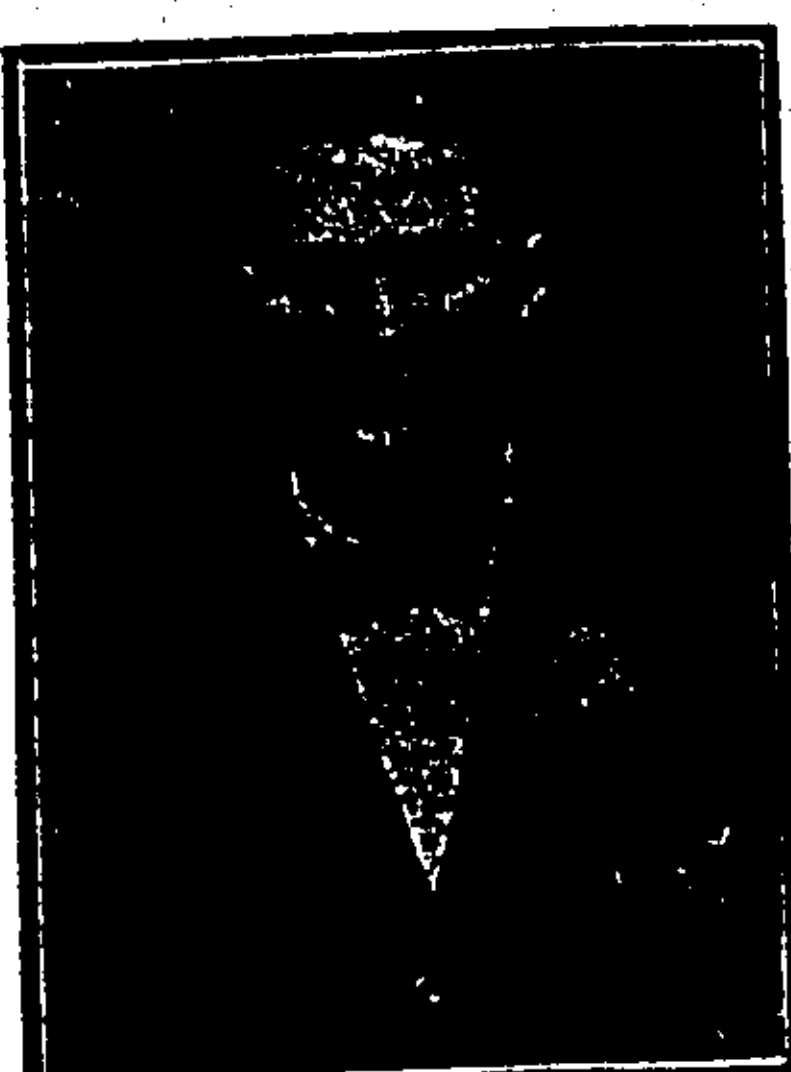

In 1926, his first year with the Civil Service, he was beaten in the Final of the C.S.C.C. Championship by A. H. Oswick, last year's open semi-finalist. In 1927 and 1928, however, he carried off the Civil Servants' title. In an endeavour to record the "hat trick" he was beaten in 1929 by F. E. E. Booker.

While at the Civil Service Cricket Club Grimmitt won the Blake Cup outright.

Grimmitt skipped the Civil Servants' victorious Spey Royal Cup team in 1928, beating U. M. Omar's Craigenower four in the Final Round.

In the Inter-Department (Government) competition Grimmitt has skipped the Revenue Department to victory on two occasions—in 1930 and 1932.

This year Grimmitt is tying with R. P. Phillips, another Civil Service skip, in the League table, and is still surviving in the Colony Championship. He will meet Teddy Fincher in the Third Round. In a season in which he is almost bound to receive Interport recognition he has been honoured by being given charge of the England rink, possible winners of the Gutierrez Shield.

MY ONE GOOD TURN

Transvaal and I had something on him. I threatened to tell the truth about him if she didn't help me in a little scheme I had on. I came over here to capitalise my gold-mine and I'd made up my mind that she was the very person to get her friends to subscribe. Well, I haven't done badly out of it. I've cashed in fairly well, but there were two more people who would have put in ten or fifteen thousand between them—

"I grinned. 'And she stalled 'em off?' I asked.
 "He nodded.

"I don't know what she told them," he said, "but they backed out of it as if they'd been shot. Well, I'm going to get back on that girl, and this is where you come in. I'm going back to Africa the day after to-morrow, and to-morrow night I'm giving a party. I've asked her and one or two of her important friends. Naturally, she didn't want to come, but I said that I was going off and wanted to part good friends, and that if she turned up and was pleasant I'd forget what I knew about her brother. So she decided she'd come! Well, when the party's over I'm going to suggest a little game of poker. This is where you come in. You've got to deal her winning cards until her luck looks stupendous; then you've got to deal her a fake hand and accuse her of cheating. You must arrange that she had an odd-backed ace or something. It's easy for you—

he grinned.
 "That'll just about finish her over here," he said, still smiling. "It's known that she's hard up. Well—how much?"

"I thought for a moment.
 "I'll have to have another fellow working with me," I said. "We should have to do the job carefully. I'll do it for two hundred pounds."
 "He gave me a fifty-pound note and told me I could collect the balance after the job was done. Then he gave me his address, had a whisky-and-soda, and went off.

"Next day I got in touch with a friend of mine and arranged things. We were going to sit on each side of the girl, and whenever the deal came to us we were going to deal her winning hands. Then, when her luck began to look too good to be true, I was going to slip an odd-backed ace in her hand and put the real ace in somebody else's on the draw. Then, when she threw her cards in after the hand, I was going to see the odd-back and start the rumpus.

"Next night, Mickey and I dressed ourselves up and went along. It was a swell party, and about twelve o'clock, when people started to go, the poker game was suggested, and seven of us started to play.

Tapping on the Table.
 But the joke was this. That girl started to win naturally. Neither Mickey nor I had to deal her winning cards; she just had 'em. This made no difference to the scheme, of course; it would have looked just as bad for her on the show-down.
 "But I'd had a couple of whiskies and I sort of felt a bit sorry for her. She looked so pleased, and the other fellow was sitting on the other side of the table still watching her like a cat with his big brown eyes.
 "Then something else happened that upset me a bit. She had a little habit of tapping on the table with her finger-nails. That was darn funny, because a girl I knew way back in the States, before I got juggled, had the same habit, and it reminded me of her.

"Well, I was just going to deal her the fake hand when he put the lid on it. He was talking to the fellow next to him and he said something or other was 'a darned crook.' Well, I tell you, that got my goat! 'I'm a crook and I know it; and so was he. He was a crooked company promoter and a blackmailer, and he was so darned mean that he was out to sew up that mug girl just for fun.

Went as White as Death.
 "I got mad. I forgot about the other hundred-and-fifty that was coming to me. I just thought I'd show him a thing or two.

"I signalled to Mickey to lay off everything—we had a code, of course; we've worked together before—and I dealt the fake hand all right; but I dealt it to my friend, the company promoter!

"And when he threw his hand in I indicated the odd ace and asked him how the hell it got there!
 "Of course, he couldn't say a word. He went as white as death. There was a devil of a scene, and eventually everyone got up and left. Somehow, I was glad to see the kid go off with some winnings, and a free revenge on the man who had intended to sink her.

"Mickey and I stayed behind. You should have heard what he called me when the room was clear.

"I didn't say a word. I just hated that fellow for some reason or other and when he'd finished I just socked him hard on the jaw, and Mickey and I walked off home.

"When I got home I could have kicked myself. I'd done myself out of a hundred and fifty pounds for nothing just because that fool girl had reminded me of my own girl. Aren't women a nuisance?
 "Well, that's how it was. I suppose it's the only good turn I've ever done. I don't know that I regret it. Have a drink?"

SPIRITUAL BOND OF EMPIRE.

Mr. John Buchan's Moving Eulogy.

COHESION IN ITS IDEALS.

"The true bond of Empire is the spiritual bond," said Mr. John Buchan, C.H., M.P., the Lord High Commissioner, speaking at a Church of Scotland meeting. His description of the British Empire is one of the finest uttered in recent years.

"What is this Empire of ours?" Mr. Buchan asked. "What the poet called 'the glories of our blood and States' are there for everyone to see. It covers one-third of the world's surface; it contains so many hundreds of millions of human beings; it is an equal partnership of sovereign States. We can define it in that way, and our definitions will be true and exact. That is its material side. It is all these things and many more.

"But there is another side of far greater importance. The Roman Empire at its best gave its people law and security. When the Roman poet wrote of it he found inspiration in the thought that those who drank of the Rhone and the Orontes were all one nation.

"But ours is a greater conception than that. The words which Lord Rosebery used of our Empire in his famous Glasgow rectorial address are just as true as the statistical facts which you will find in the encyclopedia. He said of it: 'Not without the tainted reference incidental to all human work, but constructed on the whole with pure and splendid purpose. Human, and yet not wholly human, for the most heedless and the most cynical must see the finger of the Divine.'

"The true bond of Empire is the spiritual bond. Its cohesion is in its ideals and not in its form of government. It means that over a large part of the earth's surface racial and national limitations have been transcended. It is an installment of the old dream of the brotherhood of man. It means that one great part of the globe at least is marked out where there can be no war.

"It is not a proud, racial aristocracy to dominate the world; it is an alliance based partly on a common ancestry and common memories, but far more deeply upon a common creed, a common civilisation and a common faith.

A Misused Name.

"Its name of Empire has been often taken in vain. Many false and vainglorious words have been spoken about it, and too often it has been conceived in the terms of a shallow materialism. But that is not the true Empire. The true Empire is a spiritual thing based essentially upon Christian ideals.

"There is no parallel in history to our vast assemblage of scattered peoples, linked together by a faith and a purpose, asking no tribute of each other, but ready, as the war showed, to enter on behalf of its same and honest ideals into a common sacrifice. It is a union far more than the functions of government.

"I like to think of it as, above all things, an alliance devoted to enlarging and perfecting the difficult, but not desperate, life of man. And if we go to the poets for our creed, we shall not go to the Romans, but rather to that great passage with which Shelley concluded his noblest poem:—

"To suffer woes which hope thinks infinite;

To forgive wrongs darker than death or night;

To defy Power which seems omnipotent;

To love, and bear; to hope till Hope creates

From its own wreck the thing it contemplates;

Neither to fear, nor falter, nor repent;

This, like thy glory, Titan, is to be

Great, good, and joyful; beautiful and free;

This is alone life, joy, empire, and victory."

VERY MUCH IN THE "ROUGH"

Macon, Georgia.

"This is the roughest course I ever played on," said Mr. Chappell to the golf caddy as he swung his 267th stroke.

"Lawd, Mr. Chappell, the caddy replied, 'dis hain't no golf course.' You left it two hours ago. 'Dis here's de rock quarry'—

RUSSIA IN GRIP OF FAMINE

Colossal Disaster
Impending.

PEASANTS TOO WEAK TO WORK

Berlin.
"Russia to-day is in the grip of famine which is proving as disastrous as the catastrophe of 1921 when millions died," said Mr. Gareth Jones, former political secretary of Mr. Lloyd George, when he arrived in Berlin recently en route for London after a long walking trip through the Ukraine and other districts of the Soviet Union.
Mr. Jones, who speaks Russian fluently, was the first foreigner to visit the Russian countryside since the Moscow authorities forbade foreign correspondents to leave the city. His report, which was delivered to the Institute of International Affairs explains the reason for this prohibition.
In an interview with the New York Evening Post, Mr. Jones said that famine on a colossal scale was impending. It meant death to millions by hunger, and the beginning of serious unemployment in a land which was hitherto prided itself on every man having a job. This summed up Mr. Jones's first-hand observations.
"The arrest of the British engineers in Moscow is a symbol of panic and is a consequence of conditions worse than in 1921 when millions died of hunger," declared Mr. Jones. "The trial is merely a sequel to the recent shooting of 35 prominent workers of agriculture including the vice-commissar in the Ministry of Agriculture, in an attempt to check the popular wrath at the famine which haunts every district of the Soviet Union."
"I walked alone through villages and twelve collective farms. Everywhere was the cry 'there is no bread; we are dying!' This cry came to me from every part of Russia."
Scraps From Spittoon.
"In a train, Communist denied to me that there was a famine. I slung into the spittoon a crust of bread I had been eating from my own supply. The peasant, my fellow-passenger, fished it out and ravenously ate it. I threw orange peel into the spittoon; the peasant again grabbed and devoured it."
"The communist subsided."
"A foreign expert returning from Kazakhstan told me that a million out of five million have died of hunger. I can believe it."
"After Stalin, the most hated man in Russia is Bernard Shaw. To many of those who can read and have read his glaring descriptions of plentiful food in their starving land the future is blacker than the present."
"There is insufficient seed. Many of the peasants are too weak to work the land. The new taxation policy which promised to take only a fixed amount of grain from the peasants will fail to encourage production because the peasants refuse to trust the Government."
In short, concluded Mr. Jones, the Government's policy of collectivisation and the peasants' resistance to it had brought Russia to the worst catastrophe since the famine of 1921 swept away the population of whole districts.
Coupled with this, the prime reason for the breakdown was the lack of skilled labour and the collapse of transport and finance.—Reuter.

BOLSHEVIK POET LAUREATE.

Order Of Lenin For Popular Writer.

CELEBRATES 50TH BIRTHDAY.

Moscow.
The fiftieth anniversary of the birth of Demian Byedny—the Poet Laureate of the Bolsheviks—was celebrated in the U.S.S.R. recently.
The Presidium of the Central Committee of the U.S.S.R. has awarded him the Order of Lenin for his literary work and the services it has rendered to the working class.
He received congratulations from the Central Committee of the Communist Party, the Council of Peoples' Commissars, and from various literary and social organisations.
Byedny, whose real name is Efim Alexeyevich Prodrovov, is the son of a peasant and probably the most popular writer in modern Russia. He has been writing in revolutionary, Bolshevik papers since 1910 and his work played an important part in Bolshevik propaganda during the civil war.—Reuter.

ROYALTY OF THE WORLD.

Mrs. Thornton Cook's
New Book.

"ROYAL LINE OF FRANCE"

London.
Mrs. Thornton Cook must have a great many admirers. For she concentrates on Kings and Queens—and in these days, when Crowns are becoming increasingly unfashionable, people seem to have more interest than ever in the doings of Royal Personages.
Mrs. Thornton Cook has given us books about the Royal Lines of England and Scotland and now she brings forth "The Royal Line of France" (John Murray, 18/-) in which she parades a picturesque procession, starting with Louis XI, in 1461 and ending, with a Royal coffin, in 1850. There are many illustrations—typical of those over-clad men and women of vanished thrones who stare back at us an air of well-bred vacuity.
There are rather too many difficult names and dates, but it is a book in which one can wander for many pleasant hours. And Kings and Queens are seldom dull company.
Try this extract:
"In the intervals of conducting military campaigns and consolidating her claims to the Austrian crown, the Empress Marie-Theresa had 16 children. Marie-Antoinette was the ninth, and suitability in age decided her fate. Portraits were exchanged, and the busy mother engaged two French actors in order that the future Queen of France might learn to speak the languages of the country which was to be hers. Unfortunately, one of these men happened to be notorious."

THE MODERN GIRL OF 1833.

Comparison With Modern Debutante.

SINGING A "LOST ART"

London.
What a contrast to this year's debutante—already leading her own life, driving her own car, possibly flying her own aeroplane.
Yet only 100 years ago, the Modern Girl of 1833, in wasp waist and billowing skirts, was content to take genteel walks in the Park with her chaperone, or to drive in stately fashion, accompanied by numerous servants, to the new Zoo in Regents Park.
Her life was governed by what Mr. Mark Edward Perugini in "The Omnibus Book" calls the "Maiden's Mentor"—a little book full of excellent advice which would cause much amusement to her 1933 sister.
"Mental improvement," she was told, "should always be made conducive to moral advancement; to render a young woman wise and good, to prepare her mind for the duties and trials of life, is the great purpose of education."
"Accomplishments, however desirable and attractive, must always be considered as secondary objects when compared with those virtues which from the character and influence the power of woman in society."
Obedience.
But if the 1933 debutante is tempted to laugh at this advice, she will laugh even more heartily when she reaches the chapter dealing with Obedience.
"Obedience is so much demanded in the female character, that many persons have conceived it as the one virtue called for in a woman—as it must be deemed by all to be such in a child."
"If man, as the guide and head of woman, were himself a perfect creature, this would, unquestionably be true; but as a being accountable to her Creator, and endowed by Him with reason, unqualified and implicit obedience to a creature, like herself, liable to many errors, cannot, consistently, be required."
One accomplishment, however, in which the 1933 debutante cannot compete with her 1833 sister, is singing. A hundred years ago, all girls who had been "properly" educated, were able to sing. How important was this accomplishment may be judged from the ominous warning:
"Habits of querulousness, or ill-nature, will communicate a cat-like quality to the singing, as infallibly as they give a peculiar character to the speaking voice."—Reuter.

MOTOR STILL DISCOVERED

Galena, Illinois.
Federal prohibition agents claim that they have caught a travelling still which was disguised as a grist mill mounted on a car and moved from farm to farm, manufacturing corn liquor to suit the owners' requirements from the stock of grain on hand.

THE HOLIDAY SPIRIT!

Istanbul.
A holiday crowd has almost wrecked the railway station at Boudja near Smyrna.
Annoyed because they considered that not enough trains were being run, the people flung stones, smashed windows and altogether did a great deal of damage to the station property.—Reuter.

HIGH STOCK GAMBLING FEVER IN U.S.

Huge Speculation In Stocks.

1929 BOOM RECALLED

New York, To-day.
A stock gambling fever is sweeping the United States according to the New York Sun. Travellers and brokers with branches in the interior report that orders taken by stock and commodity firms exceed those of boom year, 1929. Tremendous activity reigns among the Chicago trade brokers and cotton trading in the South. Borrowings on the New York Stock Exchange have increased 47 per cent in June to $780,386,000. This represents the highest figure since October, 1931.—Reuter.

SHIP PASSENGER OVERBOARD.

European Commits Suicide.

INCIDENT ON SUWA MARU

A suicide by drowning occurred at sea yesterday at 11 a.m., when Mr. G. H. de Carvalho, a second class passenger on the s.s. Suwa Maru bound for Hong Kong from Shanghai, was seen by another passenger to mount the railing of the promenade deck and throw himself into the sea.

An alarm was raised, the ship stopped and one of the ship's boats made a search which proved fruitless. Mr. Carvalho who was described in the passenger list as a British subject, was born in the Colony, but had recently spent some time in Shanghai.

was generally quiet.

The fate of the Conference appears to have little effect on the Stock Market generally. Industrials and rails continue to soar, the former rising 2.24 to 104.98 while rails advanced 2.02 to 56.38. Utilities improved .86 to 36.52 while bonds closed at 87.31, a rise of .58.

Business showed a substantial increase, 6,540,000 shares being traded.—Reuter.

LONDON POLICE CHANGES

5,000 Constables To Be Recruited.

SHORT TERM SERVICE

London, To-day.
In the House of Lords, yesterday, the Minister for War, Viscount Hall, moving the second reading of the Metropolitan Police Bill which deals with the recruitment of men to higher posts and the enlistment of men for short term service, said that in the old days, the police had to deal largely with the local burglar or thief, but under modern civilisation, the methods of crime, the opportunity for crime and the ingenuity of criminal had completely changed.

The measure accordingly provided for the establishment of a police college for training those designed ultimately, for high posts, and proposed to recruit 5,000 constables for a period of 10 years, other employment being found for them when the time expires.—British Wireless Service.

ULM DELAYED AGAIN

London, To-day.
A forced landing at Lyons has spoiled Mr. C. T. P. Ulm, the Australian airman, from his second long hop, to Heston from Rome. Mr. Ulm arrived at Rome from Aleppo, yesterday. He telephoned Heston Aerodrome to send an engineer to do repairs.—Reuter.
